DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-4 and 8, drawn to a recombinant vector, classified in class 435, subclass 320.1.
- II. Claim 5-7, 9 and 13, drawn to a recombinant retroviral vector system, classified in class 435, subclasses 5, 320.1 and 457.
- III. Claims 10, 11 and 17, drawn to a retroviral provirus, classified in class 435, subclass 91.1 and 91.33.
- IV. Claim 12, drawn to mRNA, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
- V. Claims 14-16, drawn to a method of introducing nucleotide sequences encoding peptides with Sag activity, classified in class 435, subclass 69.1.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions comprise different ingredients. The vectors of group I are not limited to retroviruses and none of the viral vectors of group I are replication-defective. The retroviral vector is incapable of replication by itself and requires the aid of a helper virus.

Inventions III and IV are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are structurally distinct. A provirus encompasses the genome of a virus integrated into a host cell whereas mRNA is composed of ribonucleotides and is used as templates for protein synthesis.

Inventions I, II and V are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the method of introducing nucleotides with Sag activity can be used with any vector or plasmid encoding Sag, such as those in groups I or II. Alternatively, the vectors of group I or II can be used in other methods to express any recombinant gene or transfect any cell.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification and divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

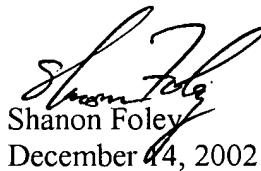

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

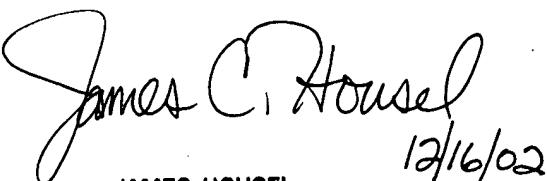

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
